

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES & PURPOSE

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

This course prepares and provides the attendees with a working knowledge of the 5 addictions and all Compulsive Disorders, the Brain Reward System, Co-Occurring Disorders, Co-Morbidities, Pathophysiology of Addiction, Counseling and Treatment Options, Treatment Models, Interviewing and Intervention Strategies, Reward Deficiency Syndrome, and Toxicology of Addiction. All classes are taught by practicing professionals.

PROGRAM PURPOSE

Addiction is a multi-factorial disease having psychosocial, genetic, spiritual and metabolic components. The most significant mechanism of this disease process is manifest through neurophysiological insult within the Brain Reward Cascade Model known as REWARD DEFICIENCY SYNDROME (RDS).<sup>1</sup>

It is estimated that up to 20% of our nation's population suffers from the disease of addiction. Since recovery and recovering individuals require total avoidance of all mood altering substances, our graduates can become this nation's greatest primary intervention resource for America's leading health care concern.

The medical model or disease concept of addiction establishes the Brain Reward Cascade as a hallmark of compulsive disorders as well as the five addictions which are: Chemical, Food, Work, Sex, and Gambling.

UPON SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF THE 150 HOUR, 10 MODULE PROGRAM AND EXAMINATION, THE "C.Ad." By developing important new skills and learning the most effective up-to-date techniques, this program will allow the participant to gain the most significant experience available. Therefore we are committed to supporting a diversified and comprehensive broad-based program utilizing both the didactic method and the applied clinical approach in teaching. This will allow both the "C.Ad." and "DACACD"
